

Whole-Scale® Workshop in New Delhi, India – February 2012

The Executive Education and Consulting – School of Inspired Leadership (SOIL) has just established a new program – The Kathleen Dannemiller Memorial, Train the Trainer Workshop to be held February 23-25, 2012 in New Delhi, India.

Kathleen Dannemiller was the inventor of the large scale interactive process now widely known as Whole-Scale® Change – a unique methodology which simultaneously involves hundreds to thousands of people in an organization or community. The February workshop will be jointly facilitated by Anil Sandev the founder of Eicher Consultancy when he and Kathie did work in India, Anil is now founder and CEO of SOIL and Paul D. Tolchinsky a former partner in Dannemiller Tyson Associates and a co-author of the book Whole-Scale Change: Unleashing the Magic in Organizations. Paul is now living and working in Vienna, Austria.

All proceeds of the workshop after expenses will be donated to Chinmaya Organization for Rural Development (CORD), which has been doing inspiring work in empowering women and the community in the villages of Himachal and are replicating the success of its work in Orissa, Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh.
